Dear FCC:

I bought the trac fone because it was affordable, I am a single parent and this was the most affordable way I could work and keep in touch with my children as we have two trac fones. I honestly don't know how I could afford the higher cost. I work 1hr. from my children and although they are responsible teenagers this is the affordable way for us to keep in contact with each other.

aid wireless telephone because I cannot afford a preset monthly charge. However, because I have two young children for whom I need to be available, I feel it is imperative to keep the use of this phone in case of emergency. I usually go weeks or months without using the phone because I am fortunate enough not to have any emergencies. Yet, you are considering charging me even for time not used. Please do not add a charge that I cannot afford and possibly deprive me of the use of my emergency contact.

Thank you for your prompt attention to this matter. Please provide a written response indicating the status/resolution of this matter.

Very truly yours,
